

Buddhism is a cult religion like any other religion and was invented for the sake of exploiting people, to dominate, imprison and exercise power over them. Religions are the cause of retarding our world by thousands of years in spiritual development and are to blame for the fact that many people are misled, thereby preventing them from ever finding the truth of all truth.

Although religions will still flourish on Earth for a very long time, slowly but surely, more and more people are waking up thereby renouncing the “must believe” and side with the “wanting to know”. A book for the spiritual advanced and seeker of truth, refreshing the consciousness of the reader, who is taken on a journey through Buddhism, while being introduced to the Creational truth. Truth alone will endure; all the rest will be swept away before the tide of time.

The book contains of the following “reads” :-

1. The true history of Tibet
2. The Dalai Lama
3. Reincarnation
4. Buddha
5. Vegetarianism/Veganism
6. The Buddhist teaching of “No Self”, The four Noble Truths and The Noble Eightfold path (basically explained)
7. The Psychopath (psychopath explained and what many of the Buddhist Lamas actually are)
8. What the Human being seeks
9. Truth
10. The truth of all truth and the prophets of Nokodemion
11. The Creation
12. The Spirit (Spirit-form)
13. The Buddhist teaching of No Self, The four Noble Truths and The Noble Eightfold path refuted
14. The true meaning of Nirvana
15. Address to all Lamas
16. The laws and recommendations of the Creation
17. Refutation of Buddhist psychology, explanation of consciousness forms, might of the thoughts and neutral positive thinking
18. Meditation
19. About “Billy Meier”
20. Summary and Conclusion

And there is a whole lot more . . .

REINCARNATION

When observing old and new literary works and textbooks of all kinds, dealing with religion and philosophy and consequently the teaching of rebirth, that is to say, reincarnation, then one will find all kinds of words, terms and explanations with regard to rebirth, which do not all quite correspond to the facts and truth of the matter.

Errors, misunderstandings, misinterpretations and falsifications have led to the fabrication of a whole lot of confusing teachings, which put all the natural lawful principles of rebirth into a light of non-reality. The whole thing is then made very complicated and confusing, which is as well very much the case when observing the Buddhist teaching on the subject, although in reality the truthful teaching of rebirth is straightforward and logic.

Buddhists are masters at making things confusing and complicated and love inventing delusional things that do not exist, which in turn make it even more complicated, opaque, incomprehensible and illogical.

Funny enough, many people feel attracted to the confusing and the complicated, the less they understand the more logical it all seems for them, and all the bogus is simply taken at “faith” value. Somehow, it is all convenient for many people to fare with false words, terms and meaning comparisons, because now there is still some room for juggling around with words and terms at will, when the real meaning behind it is not understood.

In the real and truthful teaching with regard to rebirth, respectively, reincarnation, every word has a specific and particular meaning, which should be understood correctly, and utilised. All is explained according to the actual nature of the matter in a clear way, so no misunderstandings arise. When it is all explained according to its actual nature, then every word and term reaches a range, which manifests the effective truth of the matter. This also counts for the words and terms explaining the teaching of rebirth, so that thereby in the general and the more comprehensive form, the full factual reality of the Creational law of rebirth and all aspects of cause and effect with regard to rebirth, as well as the aspects of the cycle of becoming and passing, can be recognised and understood.

When looking at the Buddhist view and explanation with regard to rebirth, then there is no connection at all with the effective truth of the matter. It is the most confusing, banal, illogical and brainless religious lunacy one can ever imagine, and it all very much contradicts with reality and therefore the truthful truth.

Nevertheless, the Buddhists dare to teach their reincarnation holy cow dung to all the rest of us, as if it were the truth. They prefer to call it rebirth though, because according to them, reincarnation refers to the existence of an immortal soul (atman) and is a belief more used in Hinduism. Buddhists, however, do not believe in the existence of an immortal soul. In Tibetan Buddhism – which is actually Lamaism, a cult religion – rebirth is a central belief and is very much connected to the concept of karma, which in itself is a fundamental part of the Buddhist teachings, and they rub it in your face whenever they can . . .

Refutation of karma

In the process of becoming and passing of human beings, respectively, in becoming and passing of the personality, it is safeguarded that all and everything of the human beings' life, every thought, every feeling, every word, every idea, every movement and all nuances of the voice and whatever, are stored in the storage banks.

This is done in multiple form, namely in the planetary storage banks and in the cosmic storage banks, finally, however, all is as well stored in the storage banks at the level of the overall consciousness-block.

As a result of this, it is guaranteed, that all and everything of all the lives of all human beings and every single personality, is forever and at all times recorded and stored, whereby never, ever, an iota of a personality is lost. Exactly this, as a matter of fact, ensures that for the time being in an unconscious manner and later by a higher consciousness related development, in a conscious manner, the stored data of the storage banks can be retrieved via impulses, when the corresponding frequency of the storage banks is being generated by the present personality, respectively, the human being, and thereby is capable of making contact with the storage banks . . .

This path of development for the human being, is a path in wisdom of the Creation and it is therefore of a by the Creation created and chosen law, that the human being, respectively, every new personality is free from his/her previous personality-existences and therefore unaware of what the thoughts, feelings, actions, vices, habits, emotions, peculiarities, abilities and capabilities, etc., in a negative or positive form were, from any previous life.

Now why is that so? This is to ensure that the present personality does not lead a similar life, which is related or in accordance with the lives of former personalities, because if that were the case, it could never be an evolutionary life, because no new strengths, energies, vitalities, hopes, wishes, desires, ideas, capabilities, behaviours and a thousand other things would be present, to secure advancement, progress and therefore evolution.

If there existed a knowingly connection with the previous life and thereby also the rebirth of the personality, then with every rebirth of a personality, the old lifestyle, respectively, way of living of the old personality, with all of the same positive and negative factors would continue. It would then all continue as the same old song, without any new strengths and energies that would lead to the development of any new abilities and capabilities, due to not being free of all the old existences.

This would all hinder advancement and a progressive life, and that evolution could come about through a striving for the higher. Only therefore thus, it is ensured, that after death, every personality is dissolved, and . . . NOT transferred to the new personality . . .

Today's Buddhism emerged from the original teaching of Siddhartha Gautama, which he spread as the "Dharma"; however, it must be very clear that Buddha's original teaching was of a very different nature than is presented by the Buddhism that we know today . . .

What the human being seeks . . .

The human being seeks; yet, for what does he/she seek?

He/she seeks for the truth, for a true life and for the meaning of life. However, he/she does this with an impetuous urge as well as in carelessness and is always eager, in all and everything that he/she comes across, to indulge in a belief, be it political, religious, sectarian, philosophical or otherwise ideological. By doing so, the human being is not concerned with the reality, not with the truth and not with the true love, humanness and all that which is associated with living a true life.

The seeking of the human being is done by blasting throughout the world, although the human being does not know what he/she actually seeks as the true life and as the meaning of life and cannot imagine anything by this.

And it is precisely this which leads to countless false prophets, gurus, masters, “enlightened ones”, “noble sublime ones”, as well as authors, offerors of seminars, etc., appearing to the scene, so that they can have a walk in the park with their horrendous nonsense, their false teachings and falsehoods, with which they bind their believers, so that they can exploit them financially, abuse them and make them dependent.

More and more, storm floods of books with erring content of the religious, sectarian, esoteric, philosophical or the political kind, are poured over the for true life and meaning of life seeking human being, who eagerly latches on to these nonsensical books, gladly being led astray. The only thing of importance to the human beings is, that they can cling on to some erroneous teaching, and have faith in it, without questioning the whole thing and without exercising any rationality and intellect.

Even academics believe in the absurdities of all these false teachings, these fools often dig to the level of the exhaustion of their consciousness, or even to the point of a psychological breakdown while delving through all the many old writings, for the sake of doing some “research” and to brainstorm on the whole thing, until they go halfway crazy.

False prophets of all kinds happily fill up the tub with anxiety by the way they preach the end of the world, warn us of God’s wrath, and promise paradise to all the believers.

All around the world the flames of warnings and promises are ignited. Like a fever-prone plague, false prophets, esoteric ones, sectarians, “enlightened ones”, gurus, “sublime ones”, sages as well as so called contactees of extraterrestrials, channelers, clairvoyants and other psychic mediums, etc., spread their divine messages.

As a matter of fact, in this way the psyche of the human being is turned inside out and becomes horribly stressed, to such an extent that nothing lively or rejuvenating is left over . . .

Now how did the Creation come into existence, and how did everything that which the Creation created come into existence?

Creation as Creation Universal Consciousness is the Creation of all existence, respectively, all that which has emerged from it as created creations, respectively, creations and all existent, namely both in the purely spirit-energetical as well as in the fine-fluidal and coarse matter realm.

Everything that exists Universe-wide has emerged from it, because nothing can arise out of itself, which also refers to the Creation Universal Consciousness as such, which has emerged from an idea of the Ur-Creation, but after its creation itself has created an idea, from which it created the Universe and everything existent in it.

Nothing is able to move without a driving force, also not the Creation Universal Consciousness, which exists as a force of an idea of the Ur-Creation, while the through the idea of the Creation created human being and all existent throughout the Universe lives through the spirit-energetical power of the Creation.

Also the Creation has a beginning which is grounded in the idea of an Ur-Creation, which has developed itself from a simple Creation, whereby though the Ur-beginning of all existence of all Creations leads back to the BEING-Absolutum, which is the beginning of all forms of Creations.

The BEING-Absolutum has emerged from an energetic impulse of absolute nothing-space, which as an absolute being-less in pure spirit-energy is of an endless duration. Out of that, an energetic impulse was formed, from which the all-Ur-first-idea and thereby the first spirit-energetical intelligence emerged, which during a three time-anon developed into the BEING-Absolutum.

Having become existent as BEING-Absolutum, it created six other Absolutum forms, namely the Zohar Absolutum, Super Absolutum, Creations Absolutum, Central Absolutum, Ur-Absolutum and Absolute-Absolutum. Out of the latter, the Absolute-Absolutum, the first Creation Universal Consciousness emerged.

This developed, respectively, evolved itself and through an idea created the Universe with everything existing in it. Thereby it worked itself upwards to the Ur-Creation, and as such it created its own idea, out of which again a Creation Universal Consciousness emerged, while the Ur-Creation developed into the Central-Creation and ever further into higher forms up until 10^{49} Creation form, which as the last Creations-form-stage merges with the Absolute Absolutum.

The visible Universe which the human beings of Earth occupy themselves with is only a little spot in this wonderful, endless, spiritual intelligence of Creation. Universes like this are present in the countless billions in the infinite spiritual intelligence of creation.

What is visible for the human physical eyes only signifies a small iota in this infinity. That which is not visible for the human eyes is immeasurable, unfathomable, unthinkable, confusing and unimaginable, for his/her un-spiritual human intelligence and mental capacity . . .

The spirit, what is to be understood by the term, from where it originates and what it means in its literal sense.

Well, first of all, the term “spirit”, respectively, its Ur-term “Ghiest” should be explained, which actually leads back to Nokodemion and is to be found in the storage banks, whereby in these as well the meaning “awakening” can be found.

When we now for example talk about Creational spirit-energy, then this means “Creational awaking-energy”. Out of this is to be understood, that the Creation, respectively, Creations-spirit, is a factor of awakening, respectively, creating, namely through the power, swinging-waves and impulses of its own energy.

Only in this sense should the term spirit be understood. An addition in the storage banks explains, that the term since time immemorial, was handed down consistently into the old “Germanic” language, from which eventually the German language resulted. When the linguistic “Germanic” family was pushed into the background, the original term “Ghiest” underwent various changes, whereby eventually the term “Geist” = “spirit” was formed.

During the whole process of change, the sense of the term got lost as well, and was explained as to “tremble”/ to “shiver”, to “frighten”, to “agitate”, etc., to then eventually become interwoven in modern times with religious and sectarian ideas of a God-spirit, which also made its entrance in the Greek language as “pneuma” and in the Latin word “spiritus” etc.

The spirit, e.g., as well became linked with a soul including otherworldly expectations, and up to the present day in many cases includes spiritual assumptions with regard to a not to a corporeal body bound, though, on it effecting pure or absolute, transpersonal or even transcendent spirituality, which is created by a God or similar to God, or is essentially alike, if not identical with him.

In the Christian world of imagination, however, a “holy spirit” is even understood to be a person, symbolically characterised as a dove or an “eye of God”. The term spirit in general has otherwise also found its entry in the common parlance of the human beings of Earth, whereby with this, very strange and misleading meanings appear . . .
